President's Message

I hope this newsletter finds everyone well. This will be my last newsletter as President. We will be holding our triannual election June 24, 2023. I have enjoyed an explosion in membership and many good times doing research for articles and becoming creative trying to get all our members involved. I have traveled to the Samuel Slater Experience in Webster, MA and visited some museums with a minimal focus on textiles. What I have learned has given me a better understanding of the textile workers and I do appreciate the time spent as your President. Please as always feel free to put your name up for nomination. We can always use new faces and ideas! I wish everyone the best in the future!

Sincerely,
Dawn Darche

Kapa (Tapa) Cloth

Mary Brown

I thought of textiles as linen, cotton, wool, etc. What an eye opener when I visited the Kuai museum in Lihue, Hawaii. They had a great display of Tapa cloth and it's manufacture I would like to share some of the experience with you.

Kapa (Tapa)

“ The wahine kuku (woman kapa beater) sat down with a basin of water by her side, picked up the club and with two hands, began to beat the wauke (paper mulberry). The wauke spread out and became tougher, and to beat it evenly, she chanted it from right to left. From morning till evening, the low sound of her beat could be heard. The wahine kuku brat merrily on, sprinkling water as she beat and also changing her sitting position and the side of l'e (kapa beater).”

Wuake (Paper Mulberry)

“The wauke plant was like father and mother to the people of old because it provided them with warm covering for the night. From the wauke came men’s loin cloths, women’s skirts, children’s clothing, beautiful ornaments for the family and all other protection for the body. Wauke was used for some rarities of fish nets, for the knotted carrying nets for wooden calabashes and fore fine bark cloths.”
